

Notes on Contributors

Valdei Lopes de Araujo is Ph.D. in Social History of Culture by the Pontifical Catholic University of Rio de Janeiro (PUC-Rio), professor at the Federal University of Ouro Preto (UFOP).

João Cezar de Castro Rocha is Full Professor of Comparative Literature at State University of Rio de Janeiro and a Researcher at CNPq and a Humboldt Fellow. He is “Xiaoxiang Scholar” at Hunan Normal University and Visiting Researcher at the Humboldt Center for Transdisciplinary Studies at HUNNU. He was President of the Brazilian Association of Comparative Literature (ABRALIC) in 2016-2017. He has held some Endowed Chairs and visiting appointments, among them: “Visiting Professorship” (Princeton University, 2014); “Eusebio Francisco Kino S.J./Diálogo Fe-Cultura Endowed Chair”–Universidad Iberoamericana (Guadalajara/Tijuana, February 2011), etc. He is the author of 13 books and editor of more than 20 titles. His latest publication is Guerra Cultural e Retórica do Ódio. Crônicas de um Brasil pós-político (2021).

William Egginton is the Decker Professor in the Humanities and Director of the Alexander Grass Humanities Institute of the Johns Hopkins University. He is the author of multiple books, including How the World Became a Stage (2003), Perversity and Ethics (2006), A Wrinkle in History (2007), The Philosopher’s Desire (2007), The Theater of Truth (2010), In Defense of Religious Moderation (2011), The Man Who Invented Fiction: How Cervantes Ushered in the Modern World (2016), Medialogies: Reading Reality in the Age of Inflationary Media (2017) with David Castillo, and The Splintering of the American Mind (2018).

Xing Fan is an Assistant Professor of Department of Spanish and Portuguese, Peking University. She received a Master and a Ph.D. degree in literary criticism from State University of Campinas (Unicamp, Brazil). Her research focuses on the modern and contemporary Brazilian literature, cultural interaction between China and Brazil, translation studies and left-wing literature.

Pablo Armando González Ulloa Aguirre, Ph.D. in Political and Social Sciences at the Faculty of Political and Social Sciences of the UNAM. Full-time professor at the same university. He is a member of the National System of Researchers (SNI 2). In 2017 he was distinguished with the National University Distinction Recognition for Young Academics in Social Sciences.

Hongxin Jiang is Distinguished Professor and Chancellor at Hunan Normal University. His main research fields are Anglo-American literature, translation theories and practice, comparative Chinese and Western culture, and higher education pedagogy. Regarded as a leading expert in China on Ezra Pound and T.S. Eliot, he is the author of numerous articles and books, including Approaching Four Quartets: A Study on T.S. Eliot’s Poetic Art, History of Ezra Pound Studies, and The Meaning of University. Among his many honors, he was elected to the Academia Europaea in 2021 and is among the Top Talents of the 21st Century in China. His current academic posts include serving as a member of China Social Science Foundation Reviewer, Chair Member of the National English Teaching Steering Committee, Associate Chair of the National Teaching Steering Committee for Professional Master’s in Translation and Interpreting, and President of the National English Literature Association. He is Editor-in-Chief of Foreign Languages and Cultures and Journal of Foreign Languages and Cultures, and serves on the editorial board of multiple scholarly journals.

Leila Lehnen is Associate professor in the Department of Portuguese and Brazilian Studies at Brown University. She specializes in contemporary Brazilian literature and culture. Her thematic areas of research include the representation of citizenship, human rights, social justice, and democracy in literary and cultural production. Beyond this, she is also interested in Latin American environmental humanities. Her book Citizenship and Crisis in Contemporary Brazilian Literature (2013) examines the portrayal and critique of differentiated citizenship in contemporary Brazilian literature.

Marilia Librandi is Researcher affiliated with the Brazil Lab at Princeton University, and collaborator with the research and postgraduate center, Diversitas, at the University of São Paulo. She has taught Brazilian literature and culture at Princeton University, Stanford University, and Universidade Estadual do Sudoeste da Bahia. She is the author of Writing by Ear, Clarice Lispector and the Aural Novel (2018, Portuguese version Escrever de Ouvido: Clarice Lispector e os romances da escuta, 2020), Maranhão-Manhattan. Ensaio de Literatura Brasileira (2009), and she is the co-editor of Transpoetic Exchange: Haroldo de Campos, Octavio Paz and Other Multiversal Dialogues (2020).

Jorge Federico Márquez Muñoz, Ph.D. in Political Science. Full-time professor at the Faculty of Political and Social Sciences. He is a member of the National System of Researchers (SNI 2) and of the National Institute of Public Administration. In 2012 he was distinguished with the National University Distinction Recognition for Young Academics in Social Sciences.

André Masseno is a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Zurich (UZH) with a Ph.D. in Literature from the same university and a Masters degree in Brazilian Literature from the Universidade do Estado do Rio de Janeiro (UERJ). He is Professor of Portuguese at the University of St. Gallen, and his areas of interest include history of culture, countercultural production, and studies on materiality in literature and the arts. He is a member of the editorial board of the journal Língua-lugar: Literatura, História, Estudos Culturais, and is also a co-organiser of the books Antropofagias: Um Livro Manifesto! (2021), Bioescritas / Biopoéticas: Corpo, Memória e Arquivos, Filosofia e Cultura Brasileira, in addition to having publications in several literature, art, and culture journals.

Carlos Mendoza-Álvarez is Dominican friar from Mexico, currently a full professor in the Department of Theology at Boston College. His fundamental theology proposal brings together the phenomenology of subjectivity, mimetic theory, queer theory, and decolonial thought to think redemption amid global violence. He has published eight books of personal authorship, twenty collective works and more than fifty articles in specialized journals. His most recent book: La resurrección como anticipación mesiánica. Duelo, memoria y esperanza desde los sobrevivientes (2020) is the beginning of a trilogy focused on the theological idea of tradition.

Eduardo Jorge de Oliveira is Assistant Professor of Brazilian Studies (Literature, Culture, Media) at the Institute of Romanistics at the University of Zurich (UZH). He is a member of the Latin American Center and the Center for Arts and Theory of Culture of the same university. He is the author of A Invenção de uma Pele: Nuno Ramos em Obras (2018) and Signo, Sigilo: Mira Schendel e a Vivência da Escrita Imediata (2019). His research and centers of interest are: literature and visual arts, animality studies, and the boundaries between literary theory with ethnographic studies.

Mateus Henrique de Faria Pereira is Ph.D. in History by the Federal University of Minas Gerais (UFMG), professor at the Federal University of Ouro Preto (UFOP).

Maria Belén Riveiro holds a degree in Sociology and a Ph.D. in Social Sciences (UBA). The doctoral dissertation, funded with a doctoral fellowship awarded by Conicet, delves into the logics of domination of the literary field of Buenos Aires focused on the trajectory of César Aira. Currently, Riveiro carries out a postdoctoral research (Conicet) on the transnational circulation of Aira's books. Riveiro is a professor at UBA and of the Master's Degree in Documentary Cinematography at the Universidad del Cine. Riveiro is one of the Editors of the journal 7 ensayos. Revista Latinoamericana de Sociología, Política y Cultura (IIGG-UBA).

Peter W. Schulze is Associate Professor of Latin American Studies and Director of the Luso-Brazilian Institute at the University of Cologne. He is a principal investigator and currently (10/2021-09/2022) co-director of Mecila – the Maria Sibylla Merian Centre Conviviality-Inequality in Latin America, a hub for advanced studies in the humanities and social sciences based at USP and CEBRAP in São Paulo (<https://mecila.net>).

Mariano Siskind is Professor of Romance Languages and Literatures and Comparative Literature at Harvard University. He is the author of Cosmopolitan Desires. Global Modernity and World Literature in Latin America (2014), Rumo a um cosmopolitismo da perda. Ensaio sobre o fim do mundo (2020), and The Modernist Songbook. Standards y variaciones sobre formas muertas (2021). He has edited Homi Bhabha's Nuevas minorías, nuevos derechos (2013) and has co-edited with Sylvia Molloy Poéticas de la distancia. Adentro y afuera de la literatura argentina (2006); with Gesine Müller, World Literature, Cosmopolitanism, Globality: Beyond, Against, Post, Otherwise (2019); and with Guillermina De Ferrari, The Routledge Companion to Twentieth and Twenty-First Century Latin American Literature and Culture (2022). In 2022 he will publish the collection of essays, Dislocaciones y fin de eso que ya no es mundo, and is working on another one, tentatively titled About the End of the World: The Demise of Cosmopolitanism in Contemporary Culture.

Ran Wei is an Associate Professor of the Institute of Foreign Literature (IFL), Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (CASS). Ph.D. in the Institute for Comparative Literature and Culture at Peking University, he finished his dissertation about political cinemas and the global sixties, under the supervision of Prof. Dai Jinhua. He published several essays on cross-cultural humanistic exchanges between China and Latin America and on contemporary Latin American popular cultures. In terms of translation, he is the Chinese translator of Walter Mignolo's The Darker Side of Renaissance and García Márquez's Chronicle of a Death Foretold, etc., and the Co-Editor-in-Chief of the Latin American Ideas in Translation Series, Shanghai People's Publishing House. He was a visiting scholar in Universidad de Los Andes, Venezuela (2007), Duke University, U.S.A. (2010-2011) and Latin American Council of Social Sciences (CLACSO) in Buenos Aires, Argentina (2016).

François Weigel, Ph.D., is a researcher in comparative literature and Brazilian literature. He is a professor of French Language and Literature at the Federal University of Rio Grande do Norte. He is the author of the book Itinéraires urbains dans le roman brésilien contemporain (2020).

Nan Zheng is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Spanish, Portuguese and Italian at Peking University. She received her bachelor's degree from Peking University, and a doctoral degree in Hispanic American Literature from the Ph.D. Program in Latin American, Iberian, and Latino Cultures (LAILAC) at The Graduate Center, City University of New York. Her main research interests include relationship between discourse and identity in literary and cultural representations of Chile during and after Augusto Pinochet's military dictatorship, as well as interaction between verbal and visual modes of expression in contemporary Hispanic American literatures and cultures. Her scholarly research articles have appeared in AHCI indexed academic journals including Revista Chilena de Literatura and Chasqui. Revista de Literatura Latinoamericana, and peer-reviewed domestic CSCI journals such as Foreign Literature Review and Foreign Literatures.